

SPECIAL TRAINS TAKE QUAKER CITY SURVIVORS HOME

Pennsylvania Road Provides for All Victims From Keystone State.

The Pennsylvania Railroad despatched three special trains to Philadelphia shortly after the Carpathia landed the Titanic's survivors.

The first of these trains was the Widener special, chartered by P. A. B. Widener, the Philadelphia traction magnate, who was, George D. Widener, and his grandson, Harry Widener, perished. Mrs. George D. Widener and her maid were taken off in one of the lifeboats. As soon as Mr. Widener and his son, Joseph, Jr., Widener, had greeted the widow they were taken in charge by G. F. Spence of the Pennsylvania Railroad's special police, who escorted them to a waiting automobile. The Wideners departed immediately for their home, Lynwood Hall, just outside Philadelphia.

Another special was put at the disposal of the friends and relatives of J. B. Thayer, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was on the Titanic and died, but, Mrs. Thayer and her young son, J. B. Thayer, Jr., were saved. They left at once for the Thayer home in Haverhill, near Philadelphia.

The third train was known as the Pennsylvania's Special, and was designed to furnish free and immediate transportation to any survivor of the Titanic who lived in any part of Pennsylvania. Eight canbuses, furnished by the railroad company, were in waiting, and as soon as the Pennsylvania residents were landed from the Carpathia they were sent to the train, which left soon after midnight for Philadelphia and points beyond.

BUSHED 23 KNOTS TO HER DESTRUCTION, SAYS TITANIC SAILOR.

Thomas Jefferys, able seaman, who claimed to have been in command of the last lifeboat to leave the sinking Titanic, declared the monster was logging 23 knots an hour when she piled up on the ice floe.

"I was up and on duty," he said, "and I know we were not going less than 23 knots an hour. The night was clear, though there was just the slightest haze hanging over the sea. I didn't see any ice until I didn't hear that there was any ice ahead. If the captain had been told of the danger the crew didn't know anything about it."

"The Titanic did not seem to hit the iceberg hard. The glance along it on the starboard side, tearing her bottom open just aft amidships. The water poured into all the compartments. It didn't do any good to close the watertight doors, though all were closed. There was a hole in the side that ran through many compartments. If she had hit the iceberg head on I don't believe the Titanic would have sunk, for only the bow would have been crushed and the water-tight doors would have kept the water away from other parts of the ship.

"As soon as the boat struck we got orders to take our posts. I ran to the boat deck, where I was stationed. It was probably fifteen minutes before the order was passed around to take on the women and children. I didn't know up to that time that there was any danger. Even when that order was called out there was no panic. The men helped the women into the boats and then stepped out of the way to let other women in. Only three men were in my boat when she hit the water, though we picked up two or three swimmers later.

"When we got into the water, I saw that it was filled with ice. In all the time I have been at sea, I never saw so much ice around. It was visible as far as the eye could reach. We had drifted only a quarter of a mile away from the Titanic when she sank. She seemed to break in two and fill so completely with water that she became a part of it. For that reason there was absolutely none of the suction you hear about when a ship sinks. We didn't see a single ripple on the surface of the water from the sinking. Her lights were burning until the last.

"Just a few seconds after the ship went down, the water reached her boilers and they exploded. The explosion threw a great column of water into the air. When the spray had disappeared the sea was smooth and there was no sign of the greatest ship in the world.

"The women in my boat were a plucky lot. We didn't have a lot of trouble with them; they sat still and cried. But they sat still—that was the best part of it. Most of them had time to get dressed and none of them suffered any from the cold, though we floated through an ice field."

A Real Bargain.
(From the Birmingham Age-Herald.)
"So you have traded away your automobile?"
"Yes."
"Why, it was the latest model and I thought you were very proud of it?"
"So I was, but a man offered me a dozen yard eggs in exchange for it, and I never could resist a bargain."

Women's Long White Gloves

value 2.50....Saturday special at 1.65

1272 pairs of long white glove gloves that are correct for present wear

From a glove-maker in Germany we have just received a case of gloves intended for Easter business but delayed in shipment and which are therefore in line for disposition at a special price. Every pair is made of fine grained German lambskin, soft, yielding in fit, perfectly made. They are sixteen button, elbow length, with wide cut arms, and obtainable in all sizes. Just the glove for proper evening wear and a good enough value for every woman's consideration. Main floor.

Young Men's Clothes at 15.00

There are many young men who have come to the conclusion that clothes-satisfaction is not within the province of fifteen dollars, only to be convinced to the contrary at Saks'. Fifteen dollars is a pet price with us for young men's clothes, and we believe we have put more actual merit into garments at this price than can be found in any other ready-for-service clothes.

We have not only created new standards for quality of fabrics and workmanship in fifteen-dollar garments, but we have devoted a degree of time and attention to the individualizing of young men's styles not paralleled at the price under consideration. At fifteen dollars we are showing many new Spring models, in all of the popular mixture cloths, navy blue serges and blue unfinished worsteds. And be assured that a fifteen-dollar Saks garment will give you an individuality which you cannot duplicate at any price. Ages 14 to 20. Sizes 30 to 36

Saks Hair Goods

If you want to match a silk, Madam, you are dependent upon nobody's judgment but your own. But in matching your hair you are to a great extent dependent upon the judgment of some one else. And that is the chief reason why you should intrust so important a matter to those who are competent to match the shade and texture of your hair beyond the possibility of detection. It is just such service which is offered you in the Saks Hair Goods Shop, to say nothing of its wonderful assortments and the elastic range of its prices. Everything for beautifying the coiffure. 2.45 to 60.00

Tomorrow, Saturday, April 20th 648 Women's Tailored Suits

will be offered at greatly reduced prices

The fabrics include serges, whipcords, taffetas, striped cloths and mixtures, and inasmuch as the entire number of suits in this sale contains only a few suits of any one style, variety is a notable feature of the offering.

Every garment has been taken directly from stock and reduced in price from 25% to 60%, and the opportunity was never better for you to procure a Spring Suit at a fraction of the original retail cost to you. Fourth floor.

220 Suits ..... reduced to 18.50
195 Suits ..... reduced to 23.50
144 Suits ..... reduced to 28.50
89 Suits ..... reduced to 34.50

Special one-day offering tomorrow

"The Throwcoat"

a $20 value ..... Saturday at $10

Women's Flower-Trimmed Hats

at extremely low prices Saturday

With Paris showering new designs upon us continually, and our own designers, not only copying those they approve of and re-modelling others, but as often creating original conceits of their own, the Saks Millinery Salons offer you every opportunity for making a becoming choice. In flower-trimmed hats today we have listed some prices whose only drawback is that they cannot convey at all the beauty of the hats themselves.

Flower-trimmed Hats.....special at 5.00, 6.95 and 8.50

Pretty flower hats, suitable for late Spring and early Summer wear. In the newest of the season's shapes and in an indescribable variety of fashionable trimmings.

Flower-trimmed Hats....10.00, 12.50, 15.00 to 25.00

Reproductions of the newest French models—elaborate affairs that exhibit all the inventive genius of the Paris modiste.

Women's Low Shoes and Pumps.....values 4.00 & 4.50

Of the 2,500 pairs originally in this offering, more than half of them are gone. But you may still climb into a pair of 4.00 or 4.50 shoes for a matter of 2.85, if only you will act quickly. Sizes are intact, so are models and leathers. Models are newest for Spring wear, and the workmanship satisfies us, who are just as particular as you are.

English pumps, sailor ties, Colonial pumps and Blucher and lace Oxfords. In patent leather, white canvas, Nu-Buck, tan Russia calf, gun metal calf, tan or black vici kid, and black suede.
